GREG BAIN (NO 32) EXHIBITS THE RUNNING STYLE, AGAINST ASTRONAUT
... that won him Offensive Player of the Year honors today.

Raiders bound for state

By DEAN JONES
Herald-Observer Editor
BELLE GLADE—When the Glades Central Raiders butt heads with the Milton Cowboys for the State Class AAA football championship Friday night, they'll be led by the area Coach of the Year, the area Offensive Player of the Year and four All-Area Team members.
Raiders Coach Ben McCoy, nearing the end of his second year at the helm of the Glades Central football team, was named Coach of the Year this morning, just in time for the end of his state title quest.
At the same time, the Raider's outstanding halfback, Greg Bain, was named to the All-Area Team and Offensive Player of the Year in recognition of his 1,310 yards rushing and 16 touchdowns in 11 games.
Other Glades Central players named to the honor team were center Thomas Lockett, defensive tackle Charles "Bull" Miller and defensive end Willford Morgan.
Three more Glades Central players were named to the second string All-Area Team, all on offensive. They were end Jessie Hester and guards Arthur Thomas and David James.

McCoy is a native of Belle Glade and the son of Ben McCoy, a boxer many old-timers remember. He was a successful coach at Lake Shore High School, where he had an undefeated season in 1958, Kennedy High, where he coached an undefeated team in 1968 and winning seasons at those two schools and Suncoast but this is the first time he's led a team to the final game in the state playoffs.
Early in the year, McCoy said his goals were to win the district championship, which he did in a 13-0 win over Atlantic in that school's Delray Beach stadium, the conference title, which he was forced to share with Suncoast after the only loss of the season, the state title which he'll have the chance to accomplish Friday against Milton, and to go undefeated, a goal also thwarted by Suncoast's 7-6 win.
McCoy's 1978 Raiders would have had a shot at the state playoffs, after winning the District 13AAA championship of the field, but was forced to forfeit two because of the ineligibility of Johnny Rowe, a fullback who gained more than 1,700 yards rushing for last year's season in only nine games.

The ranking of those forfeits should be soothed somewhat this year by the Raiders' 12-1 record so far that led up to Friday night's clash with Milton.
In the 13 games played so far by the Raiders, they have outscored their opponents, 343-68, an average of 26-5. The Raider defense shut out six opponents for the season and kept the offensive teams of eight opponents from scoring.
McCoy said before the season that the Raiders would lack both size and real speed but he said he hoped to make up for that with quickness. He also said the team's greatest weakness would be depth at all positions.
He was right on all counts but he didn't mention the defense at that time and that has proven to be the Raiders' greatest asset.

Local woman best hawg caller Soo-o-eee, pig, pig, pig

SALLY, S.C.—Relying on nothing more than a long memory and native talent, a vacationing Belle Glade woman recently became South Carolina's champion Hawg Caller at the annual Chitlin' Strut here.
Bea Ward said Wednesday she won the lady's division of the Hawg Calling contest Nov. 24, beating out 26 other women showing off their ability to yell, "Soo-o-eee, pig, pig, pig," before 30,000 people crammed into this small town of 550 population.
"I went down there with my sister," Mrs. Ward said, "and when they announced the Hawg Calling Contest, she said, 'Why don't you try that?'"
"The only other time I tried calling hogs," she said, "was the Saturday before that when we went to Woodland Park in Columbia for a Woodmen of the World picnic. They said I sounded pretty good."

her home and her sister, Polly Skipper's home in Columbia, about 30 miles east of here.
She said her husband, a retired employee of Fruit Growers Express, had died two years ago in February, "and it gets pretty lonesome in the house, so I spend quite a bit of time with my sister."
"She was going into the hospital early in November," Mrs. Ward said, "so I came on up here then and decided to stay through Christmas."
Mrs. Ward said she'd visited the Chitlin' Strut festival, which got its start in this swine-raising community during the 1950s and which has grown every year since, twice now, the first time last November.
"It's grown now until it's world famous," she said. "There were people here from all over the United States and Canada and this is just a little old town about the size of Belle Glade."
Mrs. Ward said most of the visitors camped out in corn fields cleared after the harvest season.
"Everybody was so friendly," she said. "You could be walking along and pass some group of people playing the guitar and singing and they'd call over, 'Come on over and join us,' and we would."

"But you wouldn't believe the food," Mrs. Ward went on. "They served 40 tons of chitlins and there was a line half a mile long waiting for them. I didn't eat any but I did taste 'em. If you didn't want chitlins, they had barbecued chicken and pork too."
Although Mrs. Ward said her family originally lived in the vicinity of Columbia, she said they never raised hogs.
"I do remember Daddy calling hogs once, years ago," she said, "but I'd never tried anything like it before. I never won anything in my life."
Mrs. Ward said there were three judges at the contest, "and they spell it, 'h-a-w-g,'" but the 27 contestants were judged by applause from the crowd, estimated to contain 30,000 people.
"I don't believe there is a style," she said. "You just call the best you can and whatever the crowd likes is the winner."

City Council balks

Despite signed letters asking for a change, the Pahokee City Council voted not to switch insurance carriers Tuesday night at their regular meeting.
The Council has asked an employee vote on whether the city's health insurance be switched from Blue Cross/Blue Shield to Washington National but were disappointed about the vote.
Council chairman Bob Welty said his understanding of the voting was to be a petition asking simply if the employees wished to make the change. Instead, Welty noted, letters "of advertisement" were sent to each employee and signed by the employee.

returned and the Council was advised that seven employees refused to sign.
The policy outlined by Washington National was explained by insurance broker Hub Spooner who also submitted letters of recommendation from the City of Belle Glade.
Spooner said Washington National's cost to the city and employees would be about the same as the present carrier, but that the benefits would be greater.
One concern expressed during the council's meeting with Spooner was whether or not Washington National would pick up hospital bills from an employee now undergoing cancer therapy.

Spooner said the company would and said he would seek written confirmation from the company in this instance.
But Welty said "nothing in writing" has come from Spooner or the company thus far. Utility supervisor Bill Cross noted that if Washington National would not cover this particular employee, none of the city's employees would want to switch.
In the end, the letters were sent back to an insurance committee appointed by Welty with the recommendation of the council that city insurance advisor Milton Carpenter be asked to review both

Willie Tyson to return

Willie (Wilba to old-time Glades residents) Tyson, daughter of the late Judge Tyson of Pahokee, is coming home and she's bringing with her four albums recorded in Nashville.
Ms. Tyson's latest hit is the album "Lima Bean" recorded only recently and described by Billboard magazine as "A lively collection of show-styled tunes and ballads featuring Tyson and her background musicians in a setting reminiscent of a classy off-Broadway club revue."
Billboard recommends "Lima Bean" as one of its top album picks.
Ms. Tyson is a native of Pahokee who grew up and attended the local schools. She writes most of her own material and one selection on the LP "Lima Bean" is "Mama Always Loved Me Anyway" written about her mother, Mrs. Alyce Tyson.
A welcome home party will be held for her at the Peddler's Cart in Canal Point on Sunday, Dec. 23 from 2-6 p.m. She will be on hand to autograph album covers and visit with her friends.
All residents are cordially invited to attend.

Help America... Buy American!

The predicament the American farmer finds himself in is really not an isolated situation.

True the American grower, in general, but the Florida produce growers in particular, are threatened with bankruptcy because of foreign produce which is being dumped on the American market at below cost prices. Once the American grower is knocked out then the Mexican growers can charge any price they want to for their produce and the American consumer will have to pay their price or do without.

But again we say the farmer is only another cog in that wheel of American businessmen who are facing bankruptcy because of foreign competition.

For example: The Chrysler Corp. whom the federal government is about to subsidize in order to prevent its certain bankruptcy.

How about American Steel and U.S. Steel Corp. which are also facing bankruptcy. The U.S. Television manufacturers long ago closed shop and are now buying their T.V. sets from manufacturers in Hong Kong, in Japan and in Taiwan.

The American Television plants closed up and American employees of those plants found work elsewhere.

Ford Motor Co. now has a plant in England from which it imports cars into this country and makes more profit by so doing than they can make in their Detroit plants or other plants around the nation.

Why is this possible?

The answer is really quite simple and should be discernable to anyone capable of adding two and two together correctly.

Labor in all other country's around the world, work for one tenth the ways union laborers demand from American manufacturers.

And even at this very minute, when the Chrysler Corp. is on the ropes asking the U.S. government for a loan to keep the company from going bankrupt and thus eliminate thousands upon thousands of jobs — even now the labor unions are still demanding larger salaries plus a seat at the table of the board of directors so they will be able to drain the last possible dime out of a dying industry!

The U.S. government has joined the procession by setting a minimum hourly wage that farmers must pay their field hands or find themselves in trouble with the federal government. That hourly wage, incidentally is almost as high for a single hours work as Mexican field hands receive for a 10 hour day!

And, would be farm labor unions, are well aware of what will happen if American growers are forced out of business.

Whether or not a farm labor union would demand higher wages, if the growers hit a good money market and a bumper crop, is a question that might be answered early next year if the Mexican growers get a bad break in the weather.

But, the paramount question that will have to be answered in the very near future, is whether or not the American consumer is going to help put American industry out of business in this country, or if they are going to demand restrictive tariffs on imported products and produce, that will permit both the American manufacturer and the American farmer to continue to grow the food that, does in fact, feed the entire world!

Think about it! Especially if you are considering purchasing a foreign made product!

American products may cost a little more — but the product made in America keeps American at work in American plants.

But, in order for the American dollar to circulate back to you it must be spent in this country. Money spent to purchase foreign products leaves this country and, therefore, doesn't stand much of a chance of circulating back to you at a later date.

BOILER PLATE BY JIM JONES

Angelo G. Romeo, graying hair slicked back, stood by Saturday afternoon waiting to officially receive his Silver Star Award.

It had been a long time since the World War Two veteran had worn a uniform, but his bearing was still precise and his shoulders square in his light blue blazer.

Standing behind the formation of soldiers, Romeo turned to me and asked, "Should I say 'Ex-Corporal Romeo reporting, Sir'?"

"No," I said. "Why don't you just say 'Corporal Romeo reporting sir.'"

Brigadier General Emory C. Parrish, commander of the 81st U.S. Army Reserve Command, took his place in front of the formation and directed the adjutant to read the order.

Romeo waited expectantly, the moment he'd looked forward to for 35 years was at last at hand.

Cpl. Angelo G. Romeo, 12020731 Infantry, United States Army, was cited for gallantry at Dutch New Guinea on July 31, 1944.

Romeo, with six other men, was sent on a mission to protect a secret radio station operated by three Australian soldiers at Lake Romabai.

Seventy-one days later the outpost was attacked by 40 Japanese soldiers.

Cpl. Romeo waited for them to close in on him before attempting to fire his sub machine gun. The gun failed to fire. He was bayoneted several times. Another soldier repulsed the Japanese. Romeo crawled to another position and directed the defense of the area. He was again wounded by two grenades, one of which exploded almost on top of him. He was pinned by his post and issued orders to his men until he became unconscious because of a loss of blood.

And now, Romeo, formerly of Scarsdale, New York, Dutch New Guinea and New Port Richie, would receive his award in Tampa.

"Cpl. Romeo, front and center," he adjutant ordered.

Romeo marched up to the general and saluted like the soldier he had been more than a generation ago. Brig. Gen. Parrish pinned on Romeo's silver star and congratulated him.

The last chapter of World War Two had at last been written for

Cpl. Romeo.

I've always believed that soldiers and veterans are among the least warlike people on earth. Especially those who have been in a war.

It's those civilians who have no idea what war is all about that get people killed. I get around them the people who are least likely to be killed in a war start clamoring for it.

Most Americans are justifiably upset by events in Iran. But there is little chance military intervention would do anything other than get the hostages and a bunch of 19 and 20 year old American boys wearing olive drab killed.

War has its time and place. Iran is a place for continued diplomatic efforts.

While looking through a 1930 edition of this newspaper, I recently found an interview with General John J. Pershing, which did much to reinforce my viewpoint.

Pershing was the top American commander in the First World War. Tens of thousands of doughboys under his command fell before Germany was knocked out of the war.

Pershing refused comment on the First World War for 12 years finally breaking his silence in 1930. He had some surprising things to say.

"The same people who one month denounce war, next month may clamor for war," he said. "Suddenly we see men, women, and little children — not soldiers — but peaceful citizens, clergymen, mothers and kindly old ladies, shouting for war."

"When there is war talk in the air, almost everyone takes a hand in it but the soldiers," he said.

Pershing's interview of 49 years ago addressed other problems which are still with us today.

"People say we should disarm. America is already almost disarmed. Good men and good women tell us we should throw away our armaments. We have very little to throw away," he said.

The United States in 1979 has considerably more men in uniform and far more terrifying weapons at its disposal than in 1930.

But we face a far more formidable adversary than then. We cannot disarm ourselves any more without our own extinction.

Pershing continued: "I pray fervently that there will be no more war. With all my soul I hate it. Even so long as we are sure that war will not be thrust upon us? No nation is safe. We know that we will not provoke a war. But what is there in history to assure us that someone else will not provoke a war."

"It is not a question of whether or not we believe in war. It is a question of whether or not we will defend this wonderful country of ours if another nation which does believe in war should attack us. We are all lovers of peace now. But it is possible to change us in a few months," he said.

"It poses a threat to our national security — only to our hostages. If they are harmed, the other serious alternatives President Carter talks about in veiled terms should be used."

And so long as there continues to be some dialogue with Iran and hope for the hostages, the talking should continue.

Right now, it's their game and its being played on their field.

the deadlines you can eat.

Read in the paper Sunday about this guy up in Wisconsin who claims to be the world's most foremost authority on cussing. Aman said he cusses professionally in 200 different languages.

Well, if that's the best he can do, he sure can't be much of an authority. I can recall Master Sergeant Phil "Sewermouth" Gunderson using more than that at roll call back in boot camp.

And that was just to wake us up. There was a picture of Aman along with Sunday's story and I knew before I read the first paragraph that he wasn't a match for Sewermouth. The guy had an amiable smile that gave him a look anybody could live with.

Sewermouth never smiled, even when he was ordering some poor recruit to drop and give him 50 pushes.

That was when Sewermouth was at his most amiable and he was wearing a scowl then that would freeze a water clock in July.

Sewermouth was built in proportion to his foul tongue. He stood six feet, seven inches tall, was about three and a half feet across at the shoulder and not a hair on his head, aside from his 21 inch handlebar mustache of course.

200 languages? Piffle! Sewermouth was hell on wheels when he was alternating cusses in 350 languages but I've seen the time he peeled the paint off an M-45 tank using nothing more than good ole English.

And Aman said Hungarian was the filthiest language in the world for cussing because it combined blasphemy and family insults.

He didn't know nothing. The filthiest language in the world for pure cussing is non-com, whether it's Army, Navy, Air Force, or Marine.

United Nations vote shows world unity

There is near-unity among the 150-odd nations of the world in condemning the action of the government of Iran. That was demonstrated by the unanimous vote in the 15-member Security Council of the United Nations.

Observers could not remember another occasion when there was such agreement on so important an issue before the international body.

Members of the Communist bloc voted with the free world nations of Western Europe and Japan. Third World countries joined to defend the position of the United States.

All agreed that the holding of diplomatic personnel as hostages by the Iranian youths who seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran Nov. 4 with the approval of the Iranian government is a clear violation of international law.

No trial is needed to determine the guilt in this affair. The Iranian government, such as it is, is the guilty party and must be held responsible.

A body dedicated to peace through law has demonstrated its commitment to world law.

The American people have lost a great deal of the idealism that went into the founding of the United Nations in San Francisco 34 years ago. Since the Third World countries have taken over as the dominant majority in the long as you keep your balance sufficiently above or below that figure to know what's going on.

However if you happen to be in a transitional stage where you're either dipping above or below that magic figure, you can forget about trying to keep track of your service charges. Some banks will base the decision on whether to grant you free checking for that month on what your closing balance is, while others base it on what the lowest figure for the month was.

Service charges for checking accounts wouldn't be so bad if the methods for determining them were standardized. A simple charge per check would suffice.

Better yet, why not eliminate service charges for checking accounts altogether. Some banks have already done that, and they get along alright. Others seem to be bent on turning service charges into gimmicks to attract new customers.

It might just turn out that much of the money spent on keeping track of service charges in banks would make up for the revenue lost if the charges were dropped.

EXPERIENCING GROWING PAINS!

Thursday was a memorable day in Clewiston. The new five unit King Press arrived to the joy of everyone. Unfortunately, because of the nearness to busy Christmas season, actual installation will be delayed until the first weekend in January.

While the new press may not mean a great deal on the surface to our readers, to those involved in the day to day operation of our six newspaper organization it will mean many things . . . the present being 12 broad or 24 tab pages, the new being 10 broad or 40 page tabs. It means fewer sections to the various papers because of the larger page capacity and much less hand labor in stuffing sections. It means a production speed twice as fast per hour as the present press.

The press has been placed in the new addition of the central plant, which will ultimately allow for the expansion of the production department into the old pressroom and the addition of badly needed business office space where the present production room is.

All of these activities are signs of growth by Hammell Newspapers. The growth and plans for future growth have altered the work patterns of many of the employees in the various communities. Some have been transferred and promoted when their talents were needed elsewhere.

Additional changes in personnel assignments are planned within the organization, by personal choice. Employee change in today's society is not uncommon . . . whether it be in financial institutions, grocery stores, newspapers or field hands. There are those employees who want to move up, those who want to stay status quo and those who are moving downward. It is management's challenge to keep the round plugs in the round holes and the square plugs in the square holes . . . and sometimes that is not as easy as it seems.

With growth comes change, sometimes changes are trial and

Why is it that banks can't get together with service charges?

The most common service charge, of course, is for checking accounts, and it is the single biggest foe to balancing one's checkbook.

Some banks charge a flat fee per check. Not much problem there. Just deduct a nickel or a dime with each check you write and you shouldn't be in much trouble when the statement comes in at the end of the month.

Some have a set fee per month. Some banks have sliding scales, whereupon you pay one service charge for the first so many checks you write, and another service charge for every check thereafter.

Other banks are gracious enough to give you a few "free" checks. However once you pass that magic number of 6, 8, 10, or whatever it is — wham, you get he service charge slapped back on.

But wait, that's not all. Most banks nowadays give you free checking anyway if your minimum balance for a given month is at or above a certain amount. In recent years that amount has most frequently been $300.

Well everything's just fine as where the city can get an F-86.

"Sure, Johnny," I said, putting on my best leer, "but are you sure you don't want some filthy postcards instead? Besides, what are you expecting, an attack from Pakohee? Or is South Bay making some bad noises these days?"

Actually, I didn't have the foggiest about where or whether I could locate an F-86 but I thought I'd humor him until I could see if he was hitting on all eight.

Turned out though, he wasn't really interested in an F-86, he least not a working model. He just wanted a hull to decorate the city's new park, named appropriately enough, Airport Park.

Well, that's a jet of a different color and since I was busy talking to a Major Paul Higbee anyway on a story, and since Major Higbee is sort of a flying public relations man down at Homestead Air Force Base, I decided to see what I could find out for Johnny.

So I called Paul, he referred me to a Sergeant Munn and Munn gave me a phone number in Arizona where they give away planes for what you call your static displays.

Sgt. Munn actually told me to get hold of Mr. Robinson but he wasn't in so I talked to his secretary, a nice sounding young lady. I couldn't help wondering what she was doing in a sleazy business like this.

Well, before you could say, "The quick silver Sabre jumped over the lazy MIG's back," she'd turned me on to a Mace missile in Crawfordville and an F-86L up at Charleston AFB in Maine that was looking for a nice owner.

That was about the time it dawned on me that if it takes just two phone calls to start an air force, I'm in the wrong business. I understand arms merchants make more money than I do too.

But then just about everybody makes more than $65 a week and all

What is news...the editorial dilemma

One of the toughest questions an editor has to face, day after day, is the question of what is news. It's a question being asked by quite a few people this week in the wake of NBC's interview of one of the American hostages in Iran.

Marine Cpl. William Gallegos' interview has drawn heat from the White House, from Congress and from some other quarters where people seem to think the media are playing Iran's game by giving them coverage anytime they ask for it and on the face of it, there's some validity to the claim.

There's no question the Iranians have been able to get coverage anytime they've wanted it during the month-long-and-counting crisis.

On the other hand, an editor, whether employed by NBC network news (ABC and CBS had the same opportunity as NBC, by the way but decided against using the interview,) or the Herald-Observer, must make a private decision concerning the individual story and its intrinsic worth.

Without trying to second-guess the news departments of any of the three major networks, one of the questions that would have to be answered is whether the American public would be able to determine truth.

The public was given the opportunity to make that judgment on the strength of NBC's interview. Cpl. Gallegos' willingness to answer questions, compared to the Iranian woman's refusal had to be given some strength by viewers, although critics of the interview apparently don't think the viewers had that ability.

Had NBC made the same decision made by CBS and ABC, however, there would've been no opportunity for viewers to exercise judgement. We like to think the American public is capable of making judgements of this sort, otherwise the jury system is in deep trouble and we ought to reconsider our entire judiciary system, as well as democracy as a whole.

Another factor in the decision, and one which may have weighed heavily in some areas, is that the Iranian decision had to have been made in the belief they would gain more than they'd lose.

They were playing the propaganda game, of course, but we don't think it worked. It didn't work both because Cpl. Gallegos was playing his own game and because the American people had been kept abreast of the crisis before the interview decision ever came up.

There's an old saying that news is what the editor says it is. There's a lot of truth to that saying but the day editors start abusing those decisions is the day they become disseminators of propaganda.

And that's the day their circulation, or ratings, begin to slip because there's always other sources of information and the American public isn't made up of fools.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Sir:

In regards to a copy of a letter sent to Charles Ward in reply to his letter to the Editor published in the Herald-Observer 11-29-79.

I would request you publish this letter in your paper as Mr. Ward wrote he wished to hear from me.

However, I would ask that you do not print my home address in the paper.

Sincerely,

/s/ Robert T. Boxold
Robert T. Boxold

Dear Mr. Ward:

In regards to a letter sent by you to the editor of the Herald-Observer and printed in the Herald-Observer, Nov. 29, I am compelled to comment and correct your statements as I feel they were addressed to me personally.

The burglary of Chemspray, Inc., did occur in the early morning hours of Nov. 12. However, due to the Veterans Day Holiday this crime was not discovered until 5:30 a.m. on Nov. 13. At this time a Sheriff's road patrol unit responded and began the investigation. At 9:01, on Nov. 13, two hours after the burglary was reported, a teletype was sent to all law enforcement agencies in Palm Beach, Martin, Broward, Dade, and Hendry Counties, notifying them of the theft of several checks and the check writer from Chemspray, Inc. This, Mr. Ward, is the routine procedure used in this type of theft.

On Nov. 14, about 11 a.m. I was at the Sheriff's Sub Station, off duty, and became aware of a report from Chemspray, Inc., of the additional missing checks. After conferring with my supervisors, I wrote a notification of the stolen checks. I then called WSWN radio station and requested that this information be broadcasted during the Noon News, Nov. 14. The notification after being typed and photocopied was delivered by me to merchants in the jurisdiction of the Sheriff's Office and to Pahokee Police Department, Belle Glade Police Department and South Bay Police Department requesting these agencies to distribute them. I arrived at Belle Glade Police Department sometime between 3:15 p.m. and 3:45 p.m. on Nov. 14 and handed 50 copies of the notification to Lt. Miller of the Belle Glade Police Department requesting that he have them distributed to the merchants within the city limits of Belle Glade.

The check you cashed 30 minutes before receiving this notification for $305 is check number 683 and was not reported stolen until Nov. 14, 1979. Concerning that particular check, you did not obtain any identification from the individual presenting that check, as required by Florida State Statute 832.07(2). [The state requires identification before the case will be prosecuted. Editor] The individual who passed that check may possibly be identified after many more hours of investigation by the police community.

Mr. Ward, you should also be aware that personal notification of merchants in cases similar to this is not done in large metropolitan areas; merchants are expected to take reasonable precautions to safeguard their investments. This type of notifications can be done in the Glades area because of the concern of individual police officers and the tremendous cooperation of the law enforcement agencies and the news media in this area.

During this investigation it has become apparent that your establishment, along with two or three others in Belle Glade, was one of the primary targets of the individuals involved in the cashing of these stolen checks because of the ease that checks can be cashed at selected stores.

I was in retail merchandising for five years, after college, prior to becoming a police officer and I am aware of the sales necessary to regain any loss suffered by a merchant. But I am also aware of

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT COLDS

Although it is now possible for a physician to diagnose and stop pneumonia almost overnight, the cure of the common cold is still a problem. All that can be done is to take medicines which usually can relieve troublesome symptoms and prevent complications.

We have many reliable products for cold discomforts like a stuffed nose, coughs, raw throat, or a headache. But, if relief is not soon, or a fever persists, don't wait. Visit a physician before complications develop.

Winners

Regardless of what happens in Ocala Friday night, there's no disputing the fact the Glades Central football team is made up of a bunch of winners... and judging from their attitude during practice this week, they intend to go on winning for at least one more game.

The Raiders' attitude has a lot to do with why they're winners. They believe they can and they go out and do it.

That same attitude, transferred to classroom work, can, and is in some cases, what makes intellectual winners of kids in the Glades.

Anybody who doubts that only has to look at the success of programs such as Title I and the academic games completed Tuesday at the Belle Glade National Guard Armory.

In all too many instances since the integration of schools began in 1954, teachers have taken the attitude that minority students (read that black students here in the Glades) shouldn't be expected to perform to the same standards expected of white Anglo students.

That's a losing attitude and as long as a child's "environment" is used as an excuse for lowered standards, that's just how long we'll have losing students and losing graduates.

They can learn. They can perform. They can win. Expect high standards, then work with them, and they'll perform to expectations.

In two years, Ben McCoy turned a losing football team into a contender for the state championship.

It's taking longer than two years but teachers and administrators are turning around the State Student Assessment Test scores in the Glades too.

Sure, it's tough; nobody ever said it was going to be easy, not for the kids and not for the teachers or family members but the goal is worthwhile.

As much as we enjoy the prestige of holding a state football championship here, the purpose of schools is to provide an education that will allow the students to compete on an even basis once they're out of school.

That's really winning.

Bear startles Belle Glade Rotarians

Seventy-five pounds of growling German Shepherd is enough to intimidate even the most hardened criminal, the Belle Glade Rotary Club learned Tuesday.

Bear, the city's only police dog, gave a friendly demonstration of his abilities to Rotarians Terry Kirchman. Patrolman Ron Shunk, Bear's handler, held the leash while Bear's snarls and snaps woke any Rotarian who may have fallen asleep in the talk Shunk gave before the demonstration.

And the next thing Kirchman knew, the once vicious-acting animal was licking his hand.

Bear and Shunk trained together in Orlando and the dog lives with the patrolman and his family. Thus far, since being enrolled on the force last year, Bear has been used 119 times, making 12 felon arrests and dispersing crowds of upward of 500 people three times.

"In the food stamp line," said

Shunk, "12 policeman were having a hard time when the crowd became unruly. Bear came in and the crowd dispersed."

Bear's first apprehension was in the Ace Theater in the Southwest Section when the dog was able to convince Shunk intruders were hidden in the ceiling.

Bear has been injured once, that time coming when Shunk asked him to search another ceiling and he fell through.

The dog cost the city nothing but Shunk's salary and expenses when he was sent to Orlando to train with the dog. Bear's care includes not being fed "junk food" and annual medical checkups.

Only one out of every 100 dogs that begin the first phase of police training makes it, said Shunk. Each dog has some problem and in Bear's case, it was the fact he did not want to bite.

"Bear only bites to please me," said Shunk. "He'll wag his tail while he's biting." The dog will bite only when ordered and is trained to attack on command or when Shunk is endangered.

Shunk can utilize Bear's services in many ways, including tracking lost children, stopping fleeing suspects and soon, sniffing out drugs. Bear is also capable of searching buildings and outside areas by himself and "arresting" a suspect until help arrives.

About the only thing the dog can't do, said Shunk, is read the suspect's thoughts.

However, being a dog Bear does have shortcomings. The most notable of those are fleas and cats. Internal flea pills have eased the insect problem but cats are another matter, said Shunk.

For all this, Bear has not exactly endured himself to the area's outlaws, Shunk said he has "word from the street there is a contract out on Bear."

In a question and answer session, Shunk noted other breeds can be trained to do police work and one department's poodle is one of the country's finest canines.

He also said that in the event Shunk is knocked out or injured, Bear will stand over and guard him against further attack. Should that happen, "there is a procedure" the local law enforcement officers have been advised to follow. Only Shunk's wife or children or fellow dog handler Deputy Michael York would be able to get Bear away from Shunk.

And Bear's value to Shunk is clear. "I can call Bear back," he said soberly. "I can't call a bull's back."

When buying boots, consider this: Tony Lama uses only genuine leathers from foot to top. The arch is still supported by a steel shank and reinforced by a row of brass nails and wooden pegs. In short, the same basic handcrafted techniques of 60 years ago are still being used today to produce America's favorite western boot. They're made better to last longer. all fun and games when 100 Glades area students gathered Tuesday at the National Guard Armory but if the kids were having fun, a lot of the adults were having confusion.

The students were winding up several weeks of a tournament of academic games playing a game called LinguSCHTICK and they were casually tossing off terms most grownups haven't used for so many years it was like listening to a class in Swahili.

The self-assured players were using a combination of spelling and rules of grammar to build sentences while blocking the competition from doing the same by making demands.

David Campbell, one of the coaches for the Glade Central team trophy," she said, "and it has a little pig on top."

She said the hawg calling contest is one of a number of events at the festival, which also includes two dance contests called the Mountain Stomp and the Chitlin Strut.

"I might enter the Chitlin Strut dance next year," she said.

which won the senior division, said the game has left participants asking questions in class afterward because they were stumped during a game.

The academic games are based on the fact most people like to compete and that such competition makes the learning process easier while providing stimulus.

This was the first time all schools in the Glades were invited to take part in the academic games, although some have participated in the past when they were held on the coast.

One of the veterans of that competition is Reseno Abellera, who earned a perfect score Tuesday to win the individual competition in the middle school category. He won the countywide competition during games held in West Palm Beach last week.

Reseno has also been a member of the Lake Shore Middle School team that participated in national competition last year.

Sharon Waterman, the West Area resource teacher in charge of the games, said the competition has worked out well and the decision has already been made to hold in the near future another set of games involving mathematics.

She said the students participating in the games so far are all in the upper bracket of performers in local schools.

"I've been involved in academic games for 15 years," said Larry Liss, who came out from the school board's central office to observe the games, as he handed out ribbons to the winners, "and I haven't seen a game as well run or as competitive."

The team winners in the games were Glades Central in the senior division, East Lake Middle School in the middle school competition and Gove Elementary School in the elementary school competition.

Individual winners were Kim Lealand in the senior division, Reseno Abellera in the middle school division and Thomas Tai in the elementary school division.

In other business, the Kiwanis Club of the Glades asked for and received permission to sponsor a carnival in Pahokee.

Chester Mullis, James Martin and Ed Rongione said the carnival is small and the grounds will be cleared after it leaves. Mullis noted that all Kiwanians proceeds will be used for worthy causes.

The traditional permit fee was waived and the carnival will come to Pahokee Jan. 2-6. Councilman George Rashley voted against the motion to allow the carnival saying he simply did not wish to have them in the city.

Lonnice Dean, Jr., and Ella Dean both received taxi driver's permits from the council and the city employee's Christmas party was scheduled for next Friday. Five dollars per employee will be appropriated from the various departmental budgets to pay for the party.

The council also adjusted the wastewater bill back to normal for the Pahokee Lion's Club in line with standing policy. The Club's monthly water bill reached almost $200 when it normally is a minimum bill and while the city was unable to find any leak or error the policy remains that the bill for water must be paid but that the sewer portion can be adjusted.

The council heard the first reading of an ordinance designed to slow the infiltration of water into the wastewater system and adopted an ordinance that sets for a retirement program for elected city officials with 20 years or more continuous service in office.

I regret any monetary loss that you have suffered because of the criminal actions of the individuals involved in this burglary and of those passing these forged checks. However, I have no apologies to make for my investigation or the speed of that investigation. Had not an off duty officer begun a series of actions that included the media cooperation of the news and law enforcement agencies of the Glades area, merchants would probably still be cashing the remainder of the 260 stolen checks.

My only regret is that you made no effort to contact me, personally, concerning your feelings in this matter. If you have any additional questions, concerning this investigation or if I can ever be of service to you, please feel free to locate me at any time thru the Sheriff's Glades Sub Station.

30 YEAR SERVICE to Everglades Memorial Hospital in Pahokee were celebrated Tuesday when Hospital Administrator Frank Steinberger presented sisters Emma Jean Cook (at left) and Estelle Jess with 25-year service pins. Steinberger also presented each of the two women with a $300 check and a perma-plaque with their pictures will hang in the hallway in honor of their service. Only one other employee, Flint Scott, has received a 25-year service pin in the hospital's history.

starters is reflected in the fact that every one of the seven Glades Central players named to the All-Area Team have played on both offense and defense.

During his first six games of the season, Bain contributed as much toward the team's defense from his cornerback position as he did from running back. Since the seventh game, against Suncoast, however, McCoy said before the season began that he would be relying heavily on Bain as an offensive threat and the fact that he picked up 980 yards in his first six games bears out that reliance.

The 5'10", 180 pound junior has been a potent threat in the Raider arsenal in every game he's played, displaying the power to break through the opponents' lines, the agility to elude tackles in the secondary and the speed needed to outrun tacklers once he was in the open.

But where Bain was the only Glades Central runner with sufficient power to run to the inside during the Raiders' first six games, he has received support since then from Vincent Jones, who has steadily improved as a fullback during the last five games.

Of the other six players named to the All-Area Team, six of them represent the entire Raider line, although Miller and Morgan were picked to the defense and Lockett, Thomas and James were chosen to the offensive teams.

Miller has anchored the interior line on offense and defense, with strong support from the other positions.

Morgan goes defensively as an end and offensively, he is an outstanding tight end as well as being responsible for kicking extra points, field goals and kickoffs. His kicking has improved tremendously over the last few games.

Pahokee water customers who aren't fast with checkbook may just find themselves washing without water come January 1.

Tuesday night the City Council made a New Year's resolution and though it may be tough to stick to all the time, city employees have been ordered to make every effort. The resolution is simply "delinquent water accounts will be cut off."

In the past, the city has taken a more lenient attitude and while City Clerk Betty McCoy said she and her staff will continue to "have a little heart," the council agreed customers have taken advantage of the city.

"It's the same people, again and again, every month," noted Council president Bob Welby.

Councilman Billy McKinstry said this was true and with the rest of the council agreeing, orders were given to start the cut-offs after the first of the year.

The council also authorized attorney Mike Stauber to prepare an ordinance listing the city clerk or her deputy as the city official customers should contact if they question their bills.

The ordinance is being prepared in an effort to comply with a Supreme Court ruling and to prevent a federal lawsuit from Florida Rural Legal Services.

Holiday fashions highlight of show

A holiday fashion show and luncheon was held recently at the Belle Glade Civic Center. It was sponsored by St. Elizabeth's Guild of St. John's Episcopal Church. Approximately 100 women were present to view fashions by local dress shops.

Fifteen door prizes were donated for the fashion show, two from Town and Country, Kim and Tims, The Haze, Barbara, Sharon's Beauty Shop, Hughes Pharmacy, Lively Enterprises, Connells Hardware, Mission Florist, The Rose Petal, Time Saver Food Stores, Averill's Studio, and two gifts were personally made by Flo Jones and Dortha McGee of St. Elizabeth's Guild.

Mrs. Barbara Shupe of Clewiston is shown in this lavender and white linen outfit designed by Applause. Barbara is modeling for The Haze.

This outfit by Salem features plaid pants with a long sleeve white blouse accented with plaid trim on the lapels and pockets. Lisa Smith is shown modeling for Town and Country.

This collegiate look worn by Terry Gressinger, is designed by Outlander. The yellow and aqua pullover sweater is worn with a Classic of Boston yellow skirt. Terry is modeling for the Haze.

Deena Lee looks fetching in this blue corduroy vest set by DiJon. Deena is also modeling for Kim and Tims.

I'm just working at being "presentable"

The ad said, "This season, shine through the holiday social scene with a dazzling display from the world of haute couture."

What a depressing thought for someone who's always thought a dress is perfect for a holiday party if it's red and/or green, or has someplace you can pin a couple of plastic holly leaves.

There is, apparently, an art to being chic during the holidays. I wouldn't know for sure, because I haven't taken up chic yet. I'm still working on resenable.

But this is definitely the time of the year for the "holiday hair-do," the "holiday make-up," the "holiday ensemble."

And don't give me that stuff about beauty only being skin deep... that's deep enough, isn't it? I mean, when was the last time someone asked you if you thought you had a particularly attractive

Actually, I had intended to start getting myself back into shape for the holidays last September. I figured it would be an easy transition then, having just come through the season when you work your heart out just to be able to approach a public beach without being mistaken for a beach umbrella. But, things got a little busy in September, what with school opening and the new lineoleum going

But from now on there will be no more excuses. And I suppose the best place to start would be to set a reasonable goal.

The key word here is "reasonable." I have no intention of aiming for a look that will convince everyone within shouting distance of Saks that I just stepped off the cover of the latest issue of "Vogue." To me, it is enough to concentrate on reflecting an image which will be sufficient to keep people from asking me how long I've worked in the shipyards.

With that goal in mind, it's important to realize I own enough cosmetics to make up the entire cast of "Ben Hur," including the horses. (Incidentally, I purchase all this make-up because salesclerks in cosmetics departments always seem to serve me with the fervor of a pack of Girl Scouts going after their God and Country merit badge.)

But, armed with the magical, medicinal, mystical powers of these marvelous potions, I will make it through the holiday season, even though the "holiday me" will look a lot like the "new summer you" of last year and "fall's fascinating femme fatale" of two seasons ago.

It doesn't matter, really. What can you expect for a season whose main character is a decidedly overweight little man who's been wearing the same suit for, Good Lord, a hundred years?

Fruitcake is easy, you don't even bake!

I really enjoy fruitcake during the holidays, but hate going to the trouble of making it at home. You have an easy fruitcake recipe. E.D. Belle Glade

This has got to be the easiest fruitcake recipe in existence... it doesn't even require any baking! Just mix it up, store overnight in refrigerator, and serve topped with whipped cream.

BAKLESS FRUITCAKE
1/2 lb. pitted dates, chopped
1/2 lb. marshmallows, cut in small pieces
1/2 cup light cream (such as that used for coffee)
1/2 lb. graham cracker crumbs, ground fine
1/2 cup chopped nuts
8 oz. dried or whole red and green candied cherries
1 pint whipping cream
1 lb. graham cracker crumbs
Mix together dates, marshmallows, nuts and cherries. Add 1/2 lb. graham cracker crumbs and mix.

W.H. Add light cream, and mix to other until moistened thoroughly. Form mixture into loaf, and put in 1 lb. graham cracker crumbs into four sides and both ends. Wrap in wax paper and store in refrigerator overnight.
Before serving, whip whipping cream. Top cake with dollops of cream to serve; pass remaining whipping cream.

I collect holiday recipes, and would like a recipe for a light, not filling holiday dessert. Expect one that could be served at a party.
W.A. Pahokee

This fruit and gelatin dessert always gets some mention when used on a buffet table:
HOLIDAY HONEYDEW
1 large honeydew melon
1 cup raspberry gelatin, prepared
8-oz. pkg. cream cheese
Cup milk
To serve, slice into round slices.

Or, if you prefer, use this dramatic salad to add the holiday color to your buffet table:
CUCUMBER CRANBERRY SALAD
1 pkg. lime gelatin
1/2 cup boiling water
1 lb. cottage cheese
2 large cucumbers, peeled, seeds removed, diced
1 small onion, minced
3 heaping Tbsp. mayonnaise
1 can whole cranberry sauce
Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Cool. Set in refrigerator until slightly thickened; mix in cottage cheese, cucumber, onion and mayonnaise. Pour into ring mold and let set until firm.
Dip quickly into hot water to rim; remove from mold. Spoon cranberry sauce into center; serve. Makes six servings.

How do you make the frosted grapes I've seen used as a garnish on poultry platters?
C.K. Belle Glade

Frosted grapes are relatively simple to make, although a bit time consuming. The nice thing is the grapes can be frosted well ahead of the meal, stored in refrigerator until you're ready to serve the meal. Use them as a garnish, as you suggested, for meat trays, or on canapés trays.

FROSTED GRAPES
Carefully wash bunches of seedless grapes (keep bunches small for easy handling). Drain until nearly dry; dip into egg white which has been slightly beaten. Next, dust grapes with granulated sugar. Place bunches on racks until sugar and egg white dry completely. Chill and serve.

God's promise to Abraham

By DAVID T. EVANS

Pastor
Everglades Presbyterian Church
Next Sunday is the third Sunday in Advent. In the letter to the Romans we are reminded that reborn children (those who have accepted Christ) are children of God's promise to Abraham. We who have accepted God's love in Christ are Abraham's spiritual descendants and children of God's promise.

Today in a time when every family is beset by physical, mental and marital problems we can take particular comfort in a personal relation to God.

The implications of being children of God's promise means we can expect His love — the love of a father. In the time of crisis — an unexpected operation, a family breakup, or a mental breakdown — our Heavenly Father stands by in love. As we think of God's love we have to use human terms to express His actions toward us. For we need comfort, and we like to think of Him holding on to our hand or even cradling us in His arms.

The thought of God doing this seems strange or impossible. In actuality God uses our parents, relatives, or friends to show His love.

In the time of need or grief we only begin to realize how many friends we have. The motivation of those who surround us with love is an unselfish love found in Christ.

Coming into a close friendship with God or even accepting Him as our Heavenly Father takes practice. We must reach for His hand or arm, and then He will lift us up or guide us.

God's promise to Abraham was all his descendants without end.

God said, "You will be my people and I will be your God."

Being God's children gives us strength to face the unknown that lies ahead, but also, we are to respond to His commands. Each member of a family has a responsibility and an ability. We are to obey if we love God and we are to use our talents for the furthering of His love in the world.

Being God's children makes us dependent upon Him. God knows that in a time of trouble we need help. Dependence upon God prepares us for the crises in our lives.

Reach out to God, our Heavenly Father, and He will not fail you. He will not let go. Children of God know His love and His love grows in them. The children of God can meet the storms of life because they are standing on the solid rock of Christ's love and it is firm.

Church notes

From Isaiah to Bethlehem

A candlelighting service entitled "From Isaiah to Bethlehem" featuring music and scripture will be presented Sunday, Dec. 16 at 7 p.m. in the Everglades Presbyterian Church, Belle Glade. The children's choir will be singing under the direction of Mrs. Margaret Whitlock.

The program will include the Messianic scripture passages from the prophecies of Isaiah, Jeremiah and Micah and the gospels according to Matthew and Luke. Christmas and Advent carols will be interwoven with the scripture to tell the story of the Christ in the fulfillment of centuries of prophecy.

The pastor, the Reverend David T. Evans, Jr. will be the narrator and Mrs. Muriel Myers will accompany the program on the organ.

The offering taken will be for the Joy Gift Program (supplement to income of retired ministers, families and employees of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.) and the hunger program of the local church.

Former captive speaks

The Rev. Armand Doll, Nazarene missionary to Mozambique, Africa, for twenty-three years, will tell of his experiences in a Communist prison at the Church of the Nazarene, 480 Bacom Point Road in Pahokee Dec. 15 and 16 at the service at 10:45 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Rev. and Mrs. Doll were appointed to Mozambique in 1951 (at that time called Portuguese East Africa) after serving previously in Barbados and Trinidad.

The Dolls have now been appointed as missionary evangelists to twelve countries in the Caribbean area and Brazil. Also, Rev. Doll recently was appointed Mission Director of the Jamaica Field.

Getting married?

The Herald-Observer publishes wedding and engagement announcements as a public service and there is no charge for this service.

Engagement announcements must be in our office by 5 p.m. Monday for publication the following Thursday. Engagement announcements must be published at least one calendar month before the wedding date.

Wedding announcements should appear the first Thursday following the day of the ceremony and also must be in our office by 5 p.m. Monday. The Herald-Observer will publish wedding announcements without pictures if more than three weeks have elapsed since the ceremony.

Photos to accompany announcements should be black and white and not copies of color photographs. Polaroid prints and snapshots usually do not reproduce in newspapers with the same degree of quality as a formal portrait. Portraits are generally used for engagement announcements, and full-length photographs may be used of brides alone, or brides and bridegrooms together.

Although we will take all precautions in safeguarding the pictures, the Herald-Observer cannot guarantee the return of photographs.

Forms for submitting announcements are available at our office on Main Street in Belle Glade, and our office on Annona Street in Pahokee. Forms will be mailed to out-of-town residents and requests for forms may be sent to: Herald-Observer, P.O. Box 760, Belle Glade, FL 33430. Your telephone number must be provided on the form, and the announcement must be signed.

Contents of the published announcement is left to the discretion of the editor, with respect to available space, style and relativity.

"Tis the season to be jolly," carol the loudspeakers in the department stores, but each year it becomes harder. Days are frantic with shopping, wrapping, and addressing. There's too much to do, too many things to remember, Sally's school play, a white elephant for Joe's scout party, the Kirby's gala on the twenty-second.

There's no time for thinking, but sometimes late at night, a moment for reflection. In the rush of doing all the right things have we forgotten our reasons for doing them? Have we come bearing gifts, like the Magi, with hearts empty of the wonder and awe that was theirs?

Perhaps we need to hear anew the age-old story of a tiny Babe wrapped and gently laid in a manger while shepherds quaked and angels sang. The door of your Church stands open. Worship there the newborn King this Christmas and every Sunday.

Miss Crews is wed Nov. 17

Suzanne Crews became the bride of Gibson Clark Wilkinson in a double-ring ceremony at 4 p.m. on Nov. 17 in the First Baptist Church of Pahokee.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph M. Crews of Pahokee.

The groom is the son of Mrs. Hilda Wilkinson of Pahokee, and Charles D. Wilkinson of Clewiston.

Officiating at the ceremony was Rev. Alexander Pasetti of Ft. Myers. After a prelude of organ music provided by Teryl Collier, soloist Pat Stedham of Canal Point sang "Whither Thou Goest" and "A Time For Us."

The bride was escorted down the aisle and given in marriage by her father who wore a grey three-piece suit with a tomato orchid boutonniere.

The bride wore a white antique satin gown with Queen Anne neckline, traditional sleeves, empire front, with peplum in back. The bodice and peplum were of alençon lace and heavily beaded with pearls. The A-line skirt swept to a cathedral train bordered with alençon lace around the hemline. Her veil was a long mantilla bordered with matching lace, sequins and tiny pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink rubrum lilies, minuet roses, babies breath and ivy. The diamond necklace she wore was gift from the groom.

Jenny Shirley, cousin of the groom was maid of honor. She wore a mauve pink floor-length gown with empire waistline, pleated skirt and chiffon cape bordered with satin. Her hairpiece was a comb with silk miniature mauve roses, and she carried a round bouquet of pink carnation status and babies breath.

Bridesmaids were Yalonda Moring of Indiantown and Terry Workman of Singer Island, cousins of the bride, Anne Johnson, cousin of the groom, and Lois Zaccagnino. They wore dresses identical to that of the maid of honor, and carried similar bouquets.

Amy McCoy of Miramar, cousin of the bride, served as flower girl. She wore a floor-length white dress with long sleeves adorned with tucks and lace. Her hair was worn up in a cascade of curls held with pink rosebuds.

The groom's son, Gibson Wilkinson, Jr. was the ring bearer. He wore a silver gray tuxedo and a mauve rosebud boutonniere.

Serving as best man was Charles D. Wilkinson, father of the groom, wearing a silver gray tuxedo and white tomato orchid boutonniere.

Groomsman-ushers were Mark Crews, brother of the bride, Randy Wilkinson, Tom Wilkin-on, and Myles Wilkinson, brothers of the groom.

The bride's mother chose a floor-length mint green chiffon and lace gown. Her corsage was of pink rosebuds.

The groom's mother wore an icy coral chiffon gown with lace accents and a coral rosebud corsage.

The grandmother of the groom, Mrs. W. G. Hull, wore a pink tiered chiffon gown and a matching corsage of rosebuds and carnations.

One of the bride's grandmothers, Mrs. W. G. Williams of West Palm Beach, wore a floor-length baby blue gown with white rosebud corsage. Her other grandmother, Mrs. G. M. Crews, also of West Palm Beach, wore a royal blue gown with gold accessories, and a yellow rosebud corsage.

The church altar was banked with palms and centered with a brass tree candelabra centered with a cascade arrangement of pink rubrum lilies, carnations, babies breath and fern.

The church windows were lighted with pink candles arranged in greenery, and the reserved pews were marked with brass candle holders and a cascade of pink carnations, babies breath and fern.

At the close of the marriage ceremony Mrs. Stedham sang "The Lord's Prayer."

The reception was held in the church fellowship hall. The punch table and food tables were centered with silver candelabra with pink candles and arrangements of pink rubrum lilies, roses, carnations, status and babies breath.

The four-tiered wedding cake was topped on each layer with pink minuet roses and greenery. The cake table was placed in the center of the room under an arch of greens.

Serving at the reception were the bride's aunts, Betty McCoy of Miramar, Wynell Williams of Stuart, Mary Ellen Moring of Indiantown, and Frances Schmidt of West Palm Beach.

Attending the bride's book at the wedding and reception was Cyndee Holbrook of Ft. Lauderdale, cousin of the bride.

For traveling the bride chose a beige and burgundy print dress with burgundy jacket, and wore a white cymbidium orchid with pink accents. Following a honeymoon trip to the Blue Ridge Mountains of North Carolina, the couple is at home on Bacom Point Road in Pahokee.

Think Twice About Drinking

As statistics about alcohol misuse in our country become more alarming, it's important for everyone to step back for a moment to reconsider two basic questions asked by the United States Brewers Association in its new alcohol awareness program.

The questions seem relatively simple -- will I drink? If I do, will I drink in moderation? But your personal answers involve several complex factors.

They include your attitudes toward alcohol beverages. They involve a consideration of your family and friends who could be affected by your decisions. Your answers also require an examination of your own life goals as well as a look at how much individual responsibility you're willing to assume for your physical, emotional health and well-being.

Of the two questions, the first -- will I drink? -- is perhaps the more serious one. Many persons decide to answer "no." That decision, as the brewers association points out, should not be subject to peer, industry or other pressures. It is entitled to respect, understanding and acceptance by all associates.

Clearly, persons below the legal age should not drink at all. And for those who tend to misuse alcohol, the Association believes, abstinence is the better answer.

If your answer is "Yes" to both questions, then you must personally decide what "moderation" means to you. Your definition will come from your knowing the facts about alcohol beverages, recognizing your individual responses and applying your own common sense and intelligence. Any definition, however, must certainly imply the proper use of alcohol beverages at all times.

Just by seriously reconsidering these two questions each of us will become more aware of the growing health problem of alcohol misuse. Your understanding of that problem is something to think about -- twice.

"A little amateur painting in water-color shows the innocent and quite mind." Robert Louis Stevenson

FIRE SAFETY TIPS FROM SNUFFY

A SAFE AND SPIRITED HOLIDAY

During this year's holiday excitement, your children can be a big help in keeping your home safe from fire.

"Make fire safety a part of your holiday plans," advises Snuffy, the Burger King® Talking Fire Engine. "Ask your kids to keep a look out for 'hot spots' (fire hazards)." Watch for burning cigarettes left unattended by guests, or wrapping paper and flammable decorations placed too close to an open fire, candles or exposed light bulbs.

Trimming the tree can provide fun-filled hours for the family, but make sure that all decorations are fireproof and that artificial trees are fire retardant. Evergreens should be freshly cut—shedding needles are a sure sign of dryness.

Place your tree in a non-tip stand in an area away from drafty exists and sources of heat. Natural trees should be kept in water and discarded after a maximum of two weeks. Your kids can check the water level daily and replenish it when necessary.

Throw your tree out. Don't try to burn it in your fireplace. Trees are unseasoned green wood, difficult to burn, and produce a great deal of smoke. Also, don't build roaring fires with gift wrappings. This could ignite the soot in the chimney and cause an explosion.

Holiday lights, inside and outdoors, are a great way to brighten up the holidays. Have your children help check last year's lights for worn or frayed wires and loose or cracked sockets. When purchasing new sets, look for the Underwriters' Laboratories label to ensure that the lights have been checked for fire hazards.

Make sure the lights you plan to use outside are specifically labeled for outdoor use. Since outdoor lights are not designed for prolonged exposure, remove them as soon as the holiday season is over.

Don't use electric lights on metal trees. Sharp metal edges could cut the cord insulation. Use colored spot lights to illuminate the tree instead. Floodlights get quite hot, however, so keep them away from small children and fabrics.

Don't overload extension cords or light strings, and never run the wires under rugs where they can become worn or frayed without your knowledge. Teach your kids to unplug the lights from the wall outlet (by grasping the plug, not by pulling on the cord) before you leave the house or go to bed.

Be careful cooking that big dinner too. Kids like to help, but keep them away from the stove. Close oven doors, turn pot handles in and wear tight fitting sleeves when working near lit burners.

Don't buy highly combustible toys or those that require flammable liquids. Look for the UL label on electric toys, and make sure that toys which might generate sparks are kept well away from the tree.

Don't let your family fall victim to a holiday fire. Following these suggestions from Snuffy can tip the scales in favor of holiday fun.

activity released from the burning of coal. The dose from the burning of coal in a generating plant is, in fact, about the same as the dose of radiation from a nuclear plant, so we wouldn't have achieved very much in terms of reducing radiation exposure.

Most of the things we do have some risks associated with them and that's true of nuclear power too. It would be foolish to think that any technology or human activity has zero risk, but the risks for nuclear power, in my estimation, are small compared to those other risks. As for the people who live around nuclear plants, their exposure from that operation is very small—in the order of a few percent—as compared to radiation that they can get from natural sources. So I don't consider that a hazard.

GENI CLASSIFIEDS 11
December 12, 1979

As a medical doctor, I think the risks from nuclear power generation compared to other risks we take in our daily lives and compared to the benefits we get from energy availability is very acceptable and small.

By Dr. Leonard Sagan

Dr. Leonard Sagan, Manager of the Biomedical Effects Program of the Electric Power Research Institute, was formerly Associate Director of the Department of Environmental Medicine at the Palo Alto Medical Clinic.

It's impossible to live in a totally radiation free environment because the earth itself is radioactive and we receive cosmic radiation from outer space.

Everything in the world—rocks, mountains, the houses we live in, our bodies—is radioactive because of the natural radioactivity that exists in materials and within our environment itself.

People who live at higher altitudes receive more radiation from cosmic sources than people who live at sea level. People who live in brick houses receive more exposure than people who live in wooden houses and people who receive medical x-rays receive a good deal more exposure than people who don't receive medical x-rays. Exposures from nuclear power are very small on the order of one percent or less of an increment.

If we did not build or operate any nuclear plants, it would create certain dangers, too. For example, we'd have to build some other kinds of plants to generate electricity. Many studies have shown that the risks or hazards from operating those plants is as great or greater than those from nuclear plants. There is radio-
